* Court Support Needed * Federal District court in Eugene at 10:00 AM Friday February 10th * Daniel Ernst, some of us know by Danbo, one of the bravest men I've ever met. He doesn't just talk the talk, he's living it. Facing 30 years, that's 30 Fed years, no parole, probation, etc. All for his belief that the government does not have the right to say Cannabis is illegal. If you were in court facing losing your freedom over your beliefs in freedom and the use of a plant, wouldn't you want some support?? Yes, please show some support for someone who is truly one of our brothers. Here > is a flier if anyone wants to help spread the word.

BTW here's a letter he sent out; "I am in the Federal District court in Eugene at 10:00 AM Friday February 10th in front of Chief Justice Ann Aiken for motion hearings and would appreciate any and all supportive warm bodies to create a frequency of love for everyone in that room to do the right thing in the nature of harmony for all the living. The prosecutor, Frank Papagni, seems to know something I don't as he and a DEA agent told my sister (her name is on the property involved) that "I will die in prison". Naturally, this affected her and when I get my affidavit from her I will make a complaint for violations under the Citizen's Protection Act of 1998.

Also I have joined a class action lawsuit that has been filed with the district court in Washington DC that is a verified complaint that two constitutional quorum violations occurred in the 80th congress in 1947 and 1948 therefore the section 3231 that allegedly gives the fed's criminal jurisdiction is void ab initio. It seems to be a "dead bang winner" but who knows when you are dealing with the devil, therefore there is talk about taking it to the Hague if it is not addressed "in house". The local court will be notified of this to which I hope it has the effect of delaying the scheduled Feb. 28th trial date.

If anyone would like to see the brief and memorandum for this class action, let me know and I will email it to you. If anyone has been convicted or currently dealing with federal criminal charges you may want to consider joining this suit. It also asks for $3000/day for wrongful incarceration and a declaration of innocent. I really do appreciate your attendance of support in the physical and/or spiritual if you can make it happen! ... thanks, dan" * His email is - dance4om@gmail.com * DanBo speaks at Eugene entry of the * Students say, “Put marijuana legalization on the ballot in 2012!” * Oregon’s Students for Sensible Drug Policy chapters seek unity in the legalization movement by hosting a conference to rally behind a single marijuana legalization initiative. The conference will be held on Saturday, February 25th, from 1:00pm - 5:00pm, at Lewis & Clark Law School, in Portland, OR. * Will 2012 be the year Oregon finally votes to legalize marijuana? “Only if we work together,” declare Oregon’s united chapters of Students for Sensible Drug Policy (SSDP). In order to propel the Oregon marijuana legalization movement forward, Oregon’s SSDP chapters have come together to host a ‘2012 Cannabis Law Reform Conference,’ on February 25, at Lewis & Clark Law School in Portland, OR.

“Through the 2012 Cannabis Law Reform Conference, we hope to inspire unity of purpose and coordination among the various competing marijuana legalization initiatives in Oregon,” says SSDP State Coordinator Sam Chapman. Currently, Oregon has three initiative campaigns competing for signatures, fundraising, and volunteers, all hoping to qualify for the November ballot; the Oregon Cannabis Tax Act (OCTA), Sensible OR, and Measure I-24, also known as the Oregon Marijuana Policy Initiative (OMPI). Unfortunately, not one of these campaigns is close to the required amount of signatures necessary to get marijuana legalization on the ballot by the July deadline. With only six months remaining, Oregon’s SSDP chapters will express the growing need for cooperation among these competing campaigns.

“This conference is not going to be about finger-pointing and past failures, but hand-shaking and the future successes,” says Chapman. “It’s time to move forward together, and take the necessary steps to give Oregonians the chance to vote on this issue in November.” During the conference, Oregon SSDP will put on a neutral, non-confrontational debate

MERCY Oregon State-wide – 2012 - Calendar of Events between the initiatives, in order to educate the public and Oregon’s SSDP members about the different aspects of each campaign.

“Today’s youth are tired of being prosecuted by draconian drug laws that are blatantly discriminating based on age, class, and race.” says Chapman. “We are tired of getting arrested, losing scholarships, and losing our futures over a relatively harmless substance, one that contributes far less mental, physical and social harm than alcohol.” Oregon SSDP is a network of hundreds of students from Reed College, Lewis & Clark College, Western Oregon University, Portland State University, University of Oregon, and Lewis & Clark Law School, with more chapters in the works. SSDP mobilizes and empowers young people to participate in the political process by pushing for sensible policies to achieve a safer and more just future, while fighting back against counterproductive Drug War policies, particularly those that directly harm students and youth.
