▶ Erowid Cannabis Vault : Legal Status, U.S. LAW | Both Cannabis and Tetrahydrocannabinols, the active chemicals contained in Cannabis plants, are Schedule I in the United States. This means they are federally illegal to cultivate, buy, possess, or distribute (sell, trade or give) in all forms (cannabis plants, extracts, hash, hash oil, thc, etc) except synthetic THC (Marinol) which is Schedule III. The federal scheduling of Cannabis was disputed in 1988 by Judge Francis Young, an administrative law judge for the DEA, who recommended that marijuana be reclassified as schedule II on the grounds that if a respectable minority of doctors endorse it, then it has a "currently accepted medical use". Visit: http://www.erowid.org/plants/cannabis/cannabis_law.shtml

► Legal and medical status of cannabis - Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia | Cannabis is in Schedule IV of the Single Convention on Narcotic Drugs, making it subject to special restrictions. Article 2 provides for the following, in reference to Schedule IV drugs:

A Party shall, if in its opinion the prevailing conditions in its country render it the most appropriate means of protecting the public health and welfare, prohibit the production, manufacture, export and import of, trade in, possession or use of any such drug except for amounts which may be necessary for medical and scientific research only, including clinical trials therewith to be conducted under or subject to the direct supervision and control of the Party.

This provision, while apparently providing for the limitation of cannabis to research purposes only, also seems to allow some latitude for nations to make their own judgments. The official Commentary on the Single Convention indicates that Parties are expected to make that judgment in good faith. Click > here < for more.

► Drug Policy Alliance: Reform in New York | DPA is headquartered in New York City and is deeply involved in major campaigns in the city and state. We're kicking off 2008 with bold plans for change. Rockefeller Drug Laws: This year, DPA is spearheading an effort to go beyond the Rockefeller Drug Laws. We believe there needs to be a new paradigm in New York regarding our drug policies—one that takes us beyond repeal, and asks “What comes after repeal of these failed laws?” We need a public health approach to drug use and abuse—expanding community based drug treatment, reducing criminal penalties for simple drug possession, restoring judicial discretion, and utilizing our public health system to address key drug policy issues. The criminal justice approach to drug use and abuse has failed—a failure embodied by the Rockefeller Drug Laws. The laws have promoted institutional racism, failed to reduce drug abuse in our communities, contributed to mass incarceration, and wasted taxpayer dollars and human lives. ▶ Find out where state Senate candidates stand on medical marijuana - Last update: September 15, 2008 | The state Senate adjourned in June, after failing to act on medical marijuana legislation. The Assembly passed compassionate legislation in June 2007 and again in June 2008. But, the Senate majority leaders — first Joe Bruno

(R-Rensselaer County), then Dean Skelos (R-Rockville Center) — failed to call a vote in the Senate. It's election season, and it's vital that candidates know you care about this issue. Their chief concern was that legal medical access would send the message that cannabis is safe. The presidents can, however, lay their safety concerns to rest because the scientific literature overwhelmingly confirms that cannabis is both an effective and safe medicine. The Cannabis Safety Profile. The journal PHARMACOLOGICAL REVIEWS reports that decades of research prove that, "Compared with legal drugs...marijuana does not pose greater risks." Yet based upon mortality statistics, we can safely conclude that cannabis is one of the safest medical drugs known, for, while prescription drugs, defined as safe by the FDA, kill up to 27,000 and aspirin up to 1,000 Americans per year, cannabis kills 0 per year.
